

The Emotional Biophysics of Covid – 19

Dr. Catherine Demetriades¹

¹CERN. Email Id. dr.cathinthelab@gmail.com¹

Abstract

The objective of this research is to investigate the precise sequence in which the entity causes the biophysical effect of immune system breakdown, causing inevitable death to those who are not able to withstand its wrath. Within the influential matrix, one must determine the hidden traumas and influential experiences within the subconscious to bring them to the conscious to deal with them mentally, physically and emotionally, allowing the person to uncover the inner mental and emotional enemy that is sorted out. Since the complexity of the human matrix is vast, it is necessary to understand the base of all mysteries of human behaviour. A virus is an entity which takes on its intelligence causing disruptive patterns, and its progression has a specific sequence that causes both a mental and physical surrender to its plan.

Keywords: Emotional Biophysics, Covid-19, Chromosome, Mind Distortion, Rectifier

Introduction

CxAI (Catatrix Actual Intelligence) and SMART (Stored Memory Access Retrieval Technique) assume that from the energetic view of human health, people are more than mere biological engines. We are spiritual beings in a physical body, chemically fuelled, electrically driven and emotionally controlled. For complete balance to occur, we must address the energetic, spiritual, and emotional aspects of our being as well as the physical. When we experience resistance to the way our life is flowing, we heat up in different parts of our body. As time passes heat dissipates and the organ(s) begin to cool down, leaving only the imprint. The ability to measure the dissipation of heat from an organ allows the knowledge in how to place the emotional histories that these organs generated in respective chronological sequence and their response. Each human somatic cell contains two of each type of chromosome. One chromosome of each of the 24 pairs came from the mother and the father respectively. These 24 chromosomes come together to create the 24 organs and glands of the human anatomy. The 24 organs and gland complexes are numerically listed from 1-24 below:

Table 1 – The 24 Organs / Gland Complexes

1. Thymus	10. Thyroid	19. Skin
2. Heart	11. Veins/Arteries	20. Pancreas
3. Colon	12. Brain	21. Posterior Pituitary
4. Stomach	13. Adrenals	22. Parathyroid
5. Anterior Pituitary	14. Mind	23. Spleen
6. Liver	15. Hypothalamus	24. Lymph
7. Lungs	16. Kidney
8. Sex Organs	17. Male Endocrine System
9. Bones/Muscles	18. Female Endocrine System

The 24 organs and gland complexes are listed according to how the body is expected to degenerate when exposed to stress or radiation. This order of degeneration was determined early on by Marie Curie in 1898, and others who conducted clinical studies of individuals exposed to excessive radiation. Volumes of studies were conducted on the citizens of Hiroshima, Nagasaki, Chernobyl in 1945 – 1947, and Three Mile Island to determine the effects of radiation (excessive heat) on the human organism. Studies concluded the human anatomy responds to stress much the same ways to radiation.

In other words, radiation is also generated by stress responses. In physics, radiation is the emission of energy that travels in the form of waves or particles. Radiation is energy, and any field of energy that intersects space or effects pressure in the human organism results in stress. Regardless of the form, whether X-rays, gamma rays or E-motions, the cellular response to radiation and stress remains the same. Every 24 organs' function and condition can be affected by stress to the same degree as if exposed to radiation. Some organs are more potent than others and can withstand more stress. The Thymus (organ # 1) is the weakest, and the Lymph (organ # 24) is the strongest organ in the face of stress or radiation.

When an organ is appropriately performing its function, the corresponding condition is stable. However, in the presence of stress due to physical, mental or emotional overload, an organ meets with electrical resistance, nerve energy flow increases and the organ(s) overheats, affecting its function and condition. When this happens especially in the case of the Thymus, the function to protect the body from invading energies is inhibited. Besides, when two or more organs are energetically involved or reacting to stress, they create a link. Sometimes there may be as many as 11 or more organs “linked” or “involved”. Particular sequences or organ combinations have specific meanings or may be indicative of specific symptoms, conditions, emotions or physical and mental aspects. Years of research to decipher the metabolic codes of the DNA/RNA and genetic responses were conducted to include over 8,000 energetic reactants between the body and mind. These results allowed us to understand and catalogue how diseases and syndromes of organs and glands play into the degradation of the human organism.

The human genetic mechanisms record every stress, trauma, danger; disease, factor, or encounter in the environment and this has a bearing on the ability to survive. From the weakest organs to the strongest, from personal history to ancestors, each of the 24 organs and their genetic mechanisms, logs and catalogues each occurrence (electro-magnetic patterns) for future reference. Each entry provides insight into the trauma or substantial experience and establishes the time frame within which any of the 24 organs experienced the trauma.

Method

Measuring Resonant Frequency and Quanta. CxAI and SMART measure the process of how these electro-magnetic energies, frequencies and nerve energy (heat) flow within the body; thus making it possible to track and record where and when heat imprints occur. This information lends itself as an interface allowing the measurement and identification of which of the 24 organs were affected and the sequence in which these organs become affected. The result obtained with CxAI and SMART is like a snapshot, an image of a specific time frame in one's life. It is a linear image of time describing the order in which the body has degenerated due to stress.

All life forms share a common ground in that they are all immersed in the “field” of energy; an electro-magnetic field, within which all things resonate. In physics, resonance is the tendency of a system oscillating at maximum capacity at a particular frequency or speed. The frequency is known as systems resonant frequency. Every creation, energy systems, symptoms, diseases, body chemistry patterns, organs, and emotions have their electro-magnetic pattern or resonant frequency.

Every molecule in the universe has a unique frequency and language by which it speaks called a resonating wave. However, the communication system of everyone in society is a complex network of resonance and frequency. Molecular wave resonance is the language used to communicate not only inside the body but also between all living things. Fuelled by electro-magnetic energy and a unique DNA blueprint, the 24 organs and glands of the human body function and communicate by various frequencies, independently, and as a whole. In order to maintain health, all systems and organs must resonate in harmony and be in constant communication interacting equitably. If harmony is disrupted, communication is blocked or breaks down. It can also become excessive or a prolonged stress is placed on one system or organ. The electro-magnetic flow of nerve energy might become impeded or resistance and then builds generating heat in corresponding organs. As heat builds, the pressure becomes excessive, eventually resulting in a kind of release. This release takes the form of Energy in Motion (Emotion).

CxAI and SMART were used amongst patients with trauma during childhood and who also carried over genetic legacy. DNA and Quanta carry the information from past, recent traumas and preverbal traumas. The method included extracting the information of 100 patients with a non-invasive infrared sensor detecting the heat imprints of each organ.

Results & Discussion

Mind Distortion and the Rectifier: From all 100 patients tested, CxAI and SMART were able to identify that:

Certain circumstances arise in the body that calls for the conditioned assembly of mass and energy in one direction. Because the direct current in the body moves along sequence circuits to complete already designated tasks set by the genetic blueprint and the genetic mechanisms of the body, the human system has a built-in unidirectional design. The rectification of dispersed or scattered energy forces in the body comes about many times as a reflex of defence.

Protection mechanisms of the body cause the early warning systems to trigger and take energy away from the analytical structures, memory banks, and more sophisticated electrical circuits in the body. It is programmed in such a way so that the individual, in body, mind, and spirit, can guard against enemies in the environment. These mechanisms were created over a long time through experiences by genetic blueprints, plans, and mechanisms of the past. Many genetic structures have existed for aeons, and are quite familiar with the overall dangers of the environment; however, there is a specific mind bank in the genetic mechanism that is like a Pandoras Box. Under this dispensation, signals, transmissions, and transgressions against the genetic blueprint are stored. The genetic blueprint, the family line dating back through all of its histories, assembles data from each successive generation and utilises this mind bank as a genetic defence mechanism, which protects the individual in the present and postulates greater efficiency of humanoid structure in the future. The individual may find himself or herself inadvertently reacting and guarding against imaginary negative situations of the past circumstances.

Ancestral memories of pandemics are considered in how the body and mind respond to panic and defence mechanisms with the biophysics of mind, spirit and ultimately, the body. The automatic protective mechanism (the rectifier) balances the endocrine system. Nevertheless, if it has not been trained to protect the body of such dark forces, then the entity feeds through the hormone system draining the person of his or her life force and resulting in inevitable death. It is a trauma mechanism, which directly leans on the power and integrity of the individual. If the genetic blueprint, the governors of the human body and mind perceive that people are strong enough, then the reactivity of the rectifier will be almost unnoticeable. If people are perceived to be weak in a particular area, then the rectifier is amplified. This response mechanism can draw energies from complex processes such as sequence-parallel circuits, main switch terminals and force vectors from the organs and redirect it into one hard-driving armada against the "enemy".

The rectifier has the capabilities of both coordinating and directing assaults against any other electro-plasmic entity in the environment. The perception of extent of adversary the individual is facing is part of the experience- bank of the individuals' mind and body. If there had been any previous traumas in the individuals' life, then he or she would probably react with much higher intensity because the conundrum complicated much of the persons' attention. When the individuals' attention has been robbed and moulded into one valued expression or a unidirectional flow, then the individual cannot use this part of their mind and mental processes to logically discern the exact circumstances of his or her present environment. Panic of pandemic and its' effect both on health, financial and survival stress, will block the flow of productive energies to take the lead to a solution.

In this sense, it is the power and energy of the individual that is compressed into a lockbox. Such a person knows that there are some talent, power and energy hidden somewhere but is not sure how to get to it, so it is left alone. However, whenever there is a similar circumstance that requires the individual to exercise intelligence and logic on a specific subject, they will discover that when he tries to access this experience, there will be nothing there but darkness. The person cannot use any of the experiences that are stored in his or her memory because they are covered, blocked, stopped, and in a place that he cannot reach. The reason is that the rectifier and governors of genetic blueprint have sworn to battle against the "enemy" force in the past, no matter what it is, until a solution is found and it can be controlled. It is a stalemate situation. The rectifier spends much of its time translating information from the environment into understandable, valued logic.

The rectifier can work cooperatively with the genetic blueprint and the minds' ability to track time and date. Once the incident has been logged under a specific time, for example, four years, nine months, two weeks, one day, 3 hours, 15 minutes and 23.4578 seconds, at a longitude of 39 degrees among others, it will be tracked. For instance, if Fred had a collision with the environment and it involved these particular mechanisms: bee, pollen, tree, grass, green, and sky the rectifier lists all of the pertinent bits of information that have occurred at that specific time and location according to pressure. The information is logged-in and becomes part of a precise calculation that is a signature for the substantial experience or trauma. Depending on how severe the trauma or influential experience, the individual will lose a specific amount of attention or analytical power.

The rectifier is a battery-making device. It is part of a sub-organisational defence system, which perceives that power, and energy is necessary to overcome other powers and energies in the environment. It is a direct throwback to the axiomatic laws of electrical creation. The movement of energies in the environment against one another creates a definite amount of resistance and causes the creation of a definite amount of resistance causing the creation of sub-entities in the human system. The rectifier is a mechanism that makes sub-entities, entities and negative associations for an individual "own good". In a way, it has the power and the ability to cordon off specific dramatic incidents, which cannot be deciphered immediately, from the individuals' attention and awareness. It tries to put pain, pressure, sensation, unconsciousness and many other upsets of humanoid existence away from a persons' attention. However, by doing that, it demands a payment of attention. In other words, it takes a certain amount of attention on the part of the individual to save the rest of his energy.

For example, if one were to have lost someone very dear to them, the pain of this loss might be overwhelming. If the rectifier is in good working order, it can take all of the energies associated with this confusion and filing them under one heading of time and location (the point when the person died). Once this is filed away, it can remain as one-valued logic and hopefully can be put out of view so that one does not have to contend with it each day. Depending on the amount of power and pressure involved in trauma, three-quarters of people's attention might be sublimated into unreachable zones of analysis and retrieval. It means that the symptom pattern of the individual who had suffered such a loss will be approaching unconsciousness daily. Such a person may be walking around in a daze. They may be clumsy, awkward, dispersed, confused and “elsewhere in their mind”.

The rectifier is a necessary mechanism, which circumstances give a human body the strength and energy to overcome emergencies in the environment, such as the Covid-19 pandemic. The rectifier is assumed to be an unwanted program from the dinosaur or the caveman era when the Neanderthal man was confronted with sudden environmental upsets daily. Nevertheless, today, due to the compound complexity of the environment, the old rectifier is obsolete. However, all genetic blueprints contain the program, and most still use it.

The individual can harmonise and contain the most complicated circuits in their body and on a high level, keep them unified with newly learned survival patterns. Perhaps genetic blueprints of the future will automatically create rectifiers of more sophistication. Today, an individual may however find that the rectification processes of his or her body cause them to react erroneously to environmental stimuli. The proof of the rectifiers' operational existence is that humankind on a large scale suffers greatly from obscure allergies and emotional disturbances. There is a good deal of mental illness and criminality in the world, and most of this response is due to low-grade rectifier actions, hell-bent on coordinating energies out of the reach of the individuals' conscious awareness. Beleaguered people are also compelled to create individual criminal acts and abnormal patterns of behaviour under the direction of a faulty rectifier.

A good instance is the case of a waitress who once brought the most beautiful glass of water in a huge wine glass to the researcher. What caught the researcher's attention was that: the water in the wine glass looked so beautiful, looking at all its illusions from a certain distance was so mesmerising. It seemed like magic when one could not see through the water glass as its reflections danced around fooling one into thinking and wondering if that could be just like the "Magic of Life". Though reality frightens, it is where the Real Magic dwells. The colour of the water is different when poured in another container.

Things can be magnified when looking through the glass and distorted as well. The more magnified a thing is, the more distorted it becomes. It is impossible to escape the container, and no amount of shaking the glass will let it escape. The only way would therefore, be to release all the water from the glass by extracting it with an instrument or violently throwing it out which could leave a visible residue of droplets. It is clear that conditioning the environment has plagued upon us, and how it has emerged within our being. The only way is to take the limiting foundations and extract it with a precision tool no longer leaving a residue of the distorted part of existence. Understanding the biophysics of the human matrix is the beginning of taking control of pandemic ancestral memories. It is when one sees through the clear glass that one can see things as they are, and understand all that has come to be.

Conclusion

The pandemic, COVID 19 is considered an entity that took its intelligence and used the laws of similarity to invade humans by igniting ancestral memories on the collective consciousness of the past to enter the present and future. When a thought, trauma, emotion or any type of similar radiation is energetically programmed on a cellular level, the monster will feed through the hormone system in order to get its' fix.

The process of beating the monster to its' game is key as the issues of the energetic body and biophysics of the mind, body and spirit are managed. It might drain a human of life, force and use every possible mental weakness to manifest into the physical. Because every experience is logged into DNA level; the virus acts upon human memories to create its reality as a real fact in the present. A pandemic is recorded to happen every 100 years, and history repeats itself on all dimensions, therefore, the society should realise that it is reminiscent of facing a collective consciousness of ancestral memory, disguised as a virus.

References

- Biological basis of heredity: Recombination and linkage. Retrieved from https://www2.palomar.edu/anthro/biobasis/bio_3.htm
- Nature care resonance wellness center. Retrieved from <https://www.naturecareresonance.com/>